This initiative will provide support to faculty and staff to maximize participation in training related to diversity, equity, and inclusion that is offered by CSU or other entities, and for consistent efforts to move the College closer to inclusive excellence.

The Dean will request ideas and proposals from the Warner College Diversity and Inclusion Committee for mechanisms that can be achieved at either the College or departmental level, and the feasibility and trade-offs associated with each. The Committee will also be asked for recommendations for formally recognizing individual faculty and staff who have engaged in quantifiable, sustained effort in diversity, equity, and inclusion (see also Initiative 5.2). Training and workshops that are mandatory will be considered differently than voluntary activities.

The College will also develop a new, annual award to recognize and reward consistent effort to increase inclusive excellence in the College.

Initiative 4.1: Comprehensive Inclusivity Analysis

We will use a suite of quantitative and qualitative analyses to characterize the current Warner College climate, with an emphasis on determining actions to address identified problems.

These analyses will include College-wide climate surveys that include specific questions related to diversity and inclusion and are aimed at students, faculty, and staff (wherein faculty and staff responses are collected via University Climate Survey and a separate instrument is used to collect results for undergraduate and graduate students); focus groups of targeted populations in the College; a college-environment scan to identify potential improvements in student engagement activities; and a gap analysis and evaluation of existing efforts related to diversity and inclusion.

The upcoming CSU-wide climate survey will allow units to add an additional set of unit-level questions. Warner College intends to use that opportunity to gain a better understanding of the inclusive climate for faculty and staff throughout the College. In developing this set of questions, we will establish an action-step rubric to ensure standards for action on the basis of survey results.
